
The Flying Man is All Right.

By The Associated Press.

DUBLIN, July 26.—There is no truth in the story that a serious accident has occurred to Otto Lilienthal, the famous flying man," whose experiments with human models have attracted world-wide attention. Fifteen days ago, not last Sunday, at Gross Lichterfelde, and not at Lichtervelde, Belgium, he had a slight fall while experimenting. He was uninjured and the machine was only slightly damaged.
